Belvedere, the favorite summer home of so many St. Louis people, and the numerous residents because the state of the reserved fractions are summer to the reserved fractions and the summer to the reserved fractions and all its works. No season has started so late in a duzen years, and the worst of it is, so far as St. Louis people are concerned, there is no evidence that it will start. Here the Walls, the Christys, the Curtises, the Anheusers and their friends have been the earliest on the grounds and the most popular and liberal among the summer guests. All this Anneusers and their friends have been the earliest on the grounds and the most popular and liberal among the summer guests. All this is different now, and, rightly or wrongly, the Fair gets the blames. Charlevolx itself was never more beautiful than this year, and the lelvedere, the Inn and the other popular caravansaries were never better prepared to receive and entertain.

Louis Rosenbaum is at the Belvedere, superintending the completion of his new cottage in the Charlevolx resort grounds.

HARBOR SPRINGS, MICH.

HARHOR SPRINGS, MICH.

This quaint old Indian town has long been the center of the resort trade of the Little Traverse region. It was first visited by Father Marquette 300 years ago, and the result of his visit, though he left coin to be distributed, is seen in the large Indian population of to-day. The aborigine of the time of Marquette was willing to sell him numpkin, squash and corn for beads and trinkets but his son and daughter of the present day have a better idea of values, and meet the tourist with bark baskets and bead and porcupine-quill work of tastlest design, and will beat a -huend bargain for the while man's shekel. In fact, Harbor Springs, and the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, and the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, while man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, and in the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, and the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, while man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, and the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, while man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, and the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, the shear of the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, the shear of the man's shekel in fact, Harbor Springs, the shear of the man's shekel in fact, Harbor springs, the shear of the fact of the hardor of the country. It is the center of the Indon of the recountry, It is the center of the Indon of the fact of this region and annually does abort from the Harbor to a large extent to the many charming resorts which have grown up near by. The Emmet, enlarged and improved, still holds its popularity, but, aside from this hotel, much of the better-class trade transfers here to stage or dummy lipe for the quieter and more fashionable places.

Emmet Beach, two miles west on the coast of Lake Michigan, is delightful for situation. Its pebbly beach is the ideal for boating and bathing, and its golf grounds, which are also open to the Harbor Point Association, are famous the region over.

Harbor Point on the west and Wequetonsing and Rosaring Endow on the east are almos both ready and family are at Roaring W. L. Moody and family are at Roaring Book in Christy and family arrived at Wequetonsing vesterday to spend the season.
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas West are visiting at the Cristy cottage.
Mrs. J. H. Hoofmaster is having a fine cottage built at Roaring Brook.
Doctor A. L. Pruitt and family arrived this week for the season at Wequetonsing.

Until last week the season here has been very backward, and hotel and resort keepers were beginning to fear that they would have to go through another cold summer—the third consecutive one. But the weather is warming up now, and even old Lake Michigan is already furnishing excellent bathing, with the water holding an averase degree of nearly 70, and the fears are rapidly dissipating. In fact, never before has the bathing in the lake been so excellent at this season as it is right n.w., and hundreds are taking advantage of the fact, at Highland Park and others of the lake-shore resorts here.

Christopher D. Beale, owner and proprietor of Prospect Point Manor on Spring Lake, died in Chicago June 25, after an illness of several weeks, with heart trouble. He was one of the best-known resort keepers in this locality, and his Prospect Point has been popular for many years with St. Louis receiters.

The staying at the Pines on Spring Lake in the Adderton cottage at Highland Park and will be here most of the summer. Miss Samuels of St. Louis arrived at their Highland Park cottage several weeks ago, and will be here until November. Mr. Marks has the reputation of being the champion amateur fisherman among the cottages, and generally lands several huge muskellungs and pickerel during the season.

The Government pler at the harbor entrance to Grand Haven is one of the favorite spots for the St. Louis resorters, and this season the perch ishing is unusually good. One catch of 18 perch in an hour and a haif was made last week.

ATLANTIC CITY.

Last week the excursions from all points West and South opened a big rush for this resort. It is estimated that nearly $5.00 have arrived inside the last ten days, and many more are expected this week. All the hotels are booking largely in advance. At the Marlborton, Dennis, St. Charles and Traymore the bookings from the West have so far passed those of previous seasons, and with July it is expected there will be crowds here enjoying the breares and bathing.

The weather has been delightful. Every day for the last week there have been crowds in the heart and a grant, several rescues by the crised in the beach pairs, and more safety is thus insured for bathers.

A young woman, who came from the West, but whose address is unknown, committed suicide in a cottage on Memorial avenue. Hername is thought to be Lidde Pengally.

Justice Brown of the Supreme Court of the United States surprised his many friends last week by arriving at the Haddon Hall with his bride. He had been married two days previously secretly to Mrs. Josephine E. Tyler, widow of the late Lieutenant Frederick H. Tyler U. S. N., and nieco of the late Admiral Earl English. Mrs. Tyler lived for some time out West, and is well known to many of the best social set in St. Louis. The bride and bridegroom expect to visit the World's Fair during their honeymoon.
